FONT INFORMATION

Down The Block was designed by Jeremy Gates as an open source typeface family, conceived primarily as a typeface for authors and graphic novelists. Down The Block draws inspiration from the bold Serif fonts of the early 20th Century. Though traditional in form, the font has also been created with the clean look of "today" in mind. The typeface has been designed with extra letter spacing and a more generous width than other comparable Serif fonts, to create a more pleasant reading experience in longer text passages.
